Protect patients from the rough edges of thermoplastic masks

Provide Your Patients with Maximum Comfort During Head and Neck Radiation Therapy Treatments with TenderTouch™

92% of Radiation Therapists stated that cutting the thermoplastic mask results in rough or sharp edges.¹

TenderTouch: Comfort for the Patient; Ease of Use for the Radiation Therapist

1

Maximum Patient Comfort

Soft, cushioned tape covers ragged edges; relieves pressure points to provide comfort.

2

Stays on for Duration of Treatment

Sticks consistently to the thermoplastic material throughout the entire treatment period.

3

Durable Marking Surface

Fade-resistant; orientation marks remain visible.

4

Easy Application Saves Time

Flexible, scored-edged tape easily molds around edges; allowing for larger piece applications.

Perfect for masks that are cut because of claustrophobia, anxiety, tightness, bolus, bite blocks, electron fields, difficulty breathing, and/or sensitive skin.

Dosimetric Properties of TenderTouch™

The effects on surface dose of TenderTouch foam adhesive material is minimal and could be ignored in most clinical situations. In particular, the incremental change in surface dose for this material relative to the effect of the thermoplastic is not considered clinically significant in most foreseeable situations.
